English

General Information

Degrees and Areas of Concentration

The English Department is a welcoming space that invites you to experiment with creative writing and learn how literacies, rhetoric, and language shape and are shaped by our worlds. It offers courses in traditional British and American literature as well as literatures of the world and two niche literatures, Irish literature and the literature of sport, both of which have national conferences that students may participate in. In English courses you will find diverse and interesting student colleagues and award-winning teachers.

The Department often cross-lists courses with Gender Studies, Museum Studies, and others, so that you can branch out into related fields and get English credit for doing so. It can open up the world of publishing to you through courses like Writers at Work and the annual undergraduate publication of LitMag, an award-winning, student-run literature and arts journal. Through the course in Literary Journal Editing, graduate students can gain professional experience via the department’s affiliation with the prestigious literary journal, Boulevard Magazine. You may also study in Galway, Ireland with scholarships available to both undergraduate and graduate students through this English Department affiliated study-abroad program. Graduate student teaching assistantships offer the opportunity to gain experience as a writing consultant in the University’s Writing Center and as an instructor in first-year writing courses.

The Department offers the following degrees and certificates:

- Minor in English
- Bachelor of Arts in English
- Writing certificates in Creative, Professional, and Technical Writing, the latter of which is offered online). These certificates are open to students from any major as well as returning students.
- Master’s in English
- Master of Fine Arts in creative writing (fiction and poetry)

The Department also contributes courses toward the Bachelor of Science in Secondary Education and the Graduate Certificate in the Teaching of Writing. (Students interested in teaching English in grades 9-12 should work with their Education adviser to ensure that any English courses they take will satisfy both the BA in English and the BS in Secondary Education.)

Departmental Honors

Candidates for departmental honors in English must achieve a 3.2 average in English at graduation and complete an undergraduate or graduate seminar in English, the final paper for which must be acceptable to the instructor as an honors thesis.

Career Outlook

Completing a degree in English equips you with job skills that many and varied employers are looking for.

Equipped with excellent critical thinking, writing, and rhetorical skills, students with English degrees are well suited for any administrative, commercial, non-profit, or training position that requires analytic, interpretive, and communicative skills. They work as project managers; in resume, proposal, grant and technical writing and literary journal positions; and occasionally as instructional designers. They find themselves in digital workplaces, especially in social media coordination as well as content creation, coordination, marketing; and they are sought after for game design positions and work in real estate and mortgage banking, and curate programs at art museums, and entrepreneurship.

They are well equipped for graduate study in English and Rhetoric/Composition, and other fields like public policy, library science, and law. With graduate degrees, they may be qualified to teach in community colleges and other institutional settings.

Courses

ENGL 1001 English Studies: 1-3 semester hours
This course covers topics that fall under the umbrella of English Studies, which may include literary study, creative writing, and language and writing studies. The course may be repeated for credit if the topics are substantially different.

ENGL 1030 Beginning Creative Writing: 3 semester hours
This course introduces students to the building blocks of creative writing and the writing workshop classroom. Students will explore how creative writers decide what material is best suited for a story, an essay, or a poem. Pairing creativity with critical thinking, the course offers basic writing practice and familiarizes students with primary concepts and techniques of craft (e.g. narrative, point-of-view, voice and style, character development, setting, imagery, and figurative language).

ENGL 1100 First-Year Writing (MOTR ENGL 200): 3 semester hours
This course integrates critical reading, writing, and thinking skills and studies actual writing practices. Sequenced reading and writing assignments build cumulatively to more complex assignments. Course activities may include formal and informal writing, drafting and revising, editing for correctness, synthesizing source material, and documenting sources accurately. This course fulfills the University’s general education first-year writing requirement. It does not count toward the major in English.
ENGL 1110 First-Year Writing for International Students: 3 semester hours
Prerequisite: Essay proficiency test or a TOFEL score of 500 or above. This course is designed for any student whose first language is not English. It integrates critical reading, writing, and thinking skills and studies actual writing practices. Sequenced reading and writing assignments build cumulatively to more complex assignments. Course activities may include formal and informal writing, drafting and revising, editing for correctness, synthesizing source material, and documenting sources accurately. Special attention given to verb tenses, idioms, articles, and syntax. This course fulfills the University's general education first-year writing requirement. It does not count toward the major in English.

ENGL 1120 Introduction to Literature (MOTR LITR 100): 3 semester hours
The student is introduced to the various literary types, including poetry, drama, fiction, and the essay.

ENGL 1170 American Literary Masterpieces: 3 semester hours
An introduction to major authors, works, and themes in American Literature from the nineteenth century to the present.

ENGL 1800 Reading Life: 3 semester hours
This course teaches college-level reading in the Humanities. The course primarily covers written texts, but may also include various genres in music, television and film, and theater. The course may be counted towards the major or minor in English.

ENGL 1950 Topics in Literature: 3 semester hours
This course will introduce the student to selected literary topics and/or genres. Each semester the department will announce topics and course content. Topics such as alienation, justice, and the absurd, and genres such as science fiction and contemporary drama are typical possibilities.

ENGL 2020 Introduction to Creative Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course is a creative writing survey and workshop focusing on the study of three genres-short fiction, poetry, and creative nonfiction. Students learn primary concepts and techniques of craft, including narrative, voice, character, setting, imagery, metaphor, point-of-view. Students will explore literary conventions specific to each genre, as well as universal qualities that make all writing effective for an audience. The course requires three different kinds of writing: brief analytic essays, open-ended exploratory exercises, and carefully-revised original work. This course fulfills the core requirement in Creative Writing and counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 2030 Poetry Writing Jumpstart: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course provides new poets, would-be poets, and curious non-poets with exercises, experiments, and activities to explore two questions: what is a poem, and how does one get written? Students will read published poems and examine their use of imagery, metaphor, form, and other techniques, and experiment with those techniques in their own writing. This course satisfies the English core requirement for the Creative Writing area and counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 2040 Fiction Writing Jumpstart: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course provides exercises, discussions, models, and practice for discovering short stories and the many ways to tell them. Students will read published short stories to learn how other writers have worked with point of view, distance, voice, plot, dialogue, setting, and characterization. Students will also write exercises and stories for workshop critique. Students who have taken ENGL 2060 may not take ENGL 2040 for credit. This course fulfills the English core requirement for the Creative Writing area and counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 2080 Advertising Copywriting: 3 semester hours
Same as COMM 2080. This course offers students a hands-on approach for writing advertising material for print, broadcast, and digital media against tight deadlines in a professional setting.

ENGL 2110 Information Literacy: 3 semester hours
This course is designed especially for humanities and fine arts majors. It introduces students to the main components of information literacy, including digital, web, and media literacies as well as library databases. Students work with both digital and print materials to find, evaluate, and synthesize information while applying the critical thinking habits of questioning and reasoning. Frequent writing and multimedia assignments will provide practice in using various technologies to assemble and to share information. This course fulfills the University's general education information literacy requirement.

ENGL 2120 Topics in Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisite: ENGL 1100 or equivalent, or consent of instructor. This course will introduce the student to writing in specific areas. Possible topics are argumentation, reading and writing about public affairs, sports reporting and writing, and writing about science. A student may repeat the course once when topics are different. The course counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 2125 Introduction to Technical Communication (MOTR ENGL 110): 3 semester hours
This course is an introduction to the process of planning, developing technical documents, including critical analysis, information design, and rhetorical expression.

ENGL 2160 Introduction to American Studies: 3 semester hours
Same as HIST 2160. This course introduces students to the multidisciplinary nature of American Studies and is a required course for those who wish to complete the minor in American Studies. It reviews the discipline from its origins in the 1930s, and it introduces students to St. Louis' rich resources for American Studies.

ENGL 2180 Introduction to News Writing: 3 semester hours
Same as COMM 2380. This course focuses on news writing and the development of news stories. Enrollment in this course is encouraged for but not restricted to staff of The Current (student newspaper) and other student publications.

ENGL 2188 Public Relations Writing: 3 semester hours
Same as COMM 2180. Prerequisites: COMM 1150 or ENGL 1100 or COMM 2380. This course is an introduction to the process of planning, producing, and evaluating messages in public relations. It examines various forms of contemporary public relations writing, with special emphasis on preparation of messages for different media and audiences, setting long-range and short-term goals and objectives, and identifying appropriate message channels.

ENGL 2330 Poetry: The Greatest Hits: 3 semester hours
This course examines a selection of the most important poems written in English. Students will study poems to understand both their literary elements-form, metaphor, theme, and so on-and their cultural/historical context. Through a careful examination of poetry, students will sharpen their ability to read, discuss, and write about literary texts. This course satisfies the core curriculum requirement for the Literature in English area.

ENGL 2340 Introduction to Drama: 3 semester hours
A close study of major dramatic works in various modes, to introduce the student to the forms and techniques of dramatic literature.
ENGL 2350 Our Stories, Ourselves: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course provides an exploration of some of our most successful published narratives, discussing plot, point-of-view, dialogue, setting, characterization, distance, pacing, suspense, and more, as well as audience and themes. Students will read, discuss, and write about stories. This course satisfies the core curriculum requirement for the Literature in English area.

ENGL 2360 Hey, Have You Read ______?: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent, or consent of instructor. This course introduces students to approaches to reading literature in the 21st century. The course can focus on a specialty area, such as a genre, time period, or nationality, or on a theme transcending several specialty areas. Students will learn to read closely and begin to look at literature through various theoretical or cultural lenses. This course satisfies the English core requirement for the Literature in English area.

ENGL 2370 Drama: The Greatest Hits: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent, or consent of instructor. This course introduces students to some of history's most famous dramas both as literary forms and as cultural expressions. Plays will therefore be considered for themselves—for their genre, structure, and language—as well as for their social function, in an effort to better understand the complex communal values, settings, and crises which produced them. Students will read and discuss a wide variety of well-known plays from ancient Greece and Rome, the early modern English stage, and modern and contemporary culture. This course satisfies the English core requirement for the Literature in English area.

ENGL 2400 Rhetorical Ways with Words: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course focuses on the diverse purposes and uses of language and writing, encouraging students to consider these functions beyond solely academic and literary realms. Specifically, students will investigate how language and writing are connected to identity, power, community, and knowledge creation. To accomplish these broad goals, students will read critical scholarship from a variety of related disciplines. They may practice field-specific methods of inquiry and/or investigate local, regional, individual rhetorical and language practices and engage in print and/or multimodal composition. This course satisfies the English core requirement for the Language and Writing Studies area.

ENGL 2410 Literate Lives: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course raises definitional and exploratory questions: What is literacy? How does it change across time? Who has access to it? How can literacy both empower and marginalize people? To explore these complex questions, students will investigate the ways in which contemporary practices of literacy—reading, writing, listening, speaking, digital composing, and critical thinking—function in the lives of individuals, communities, and cultures. Students will interrogate current definitions of literacy, study scholarship about literacy, explore literacy myths, and reflect on how their own literate lives have been shaped. They may engage in field work and interact with local literacy communities. This course satisfies the core curriculum requirement for the Language and Writing Studies area.

ENGL 2810 Traditional Grammar: 3 semester hours
An introduction to the terms and concepts of traditional grammar, beginning with functions of the noun and forms of the verb in simple sentences, moving to more complex structures such as subordinate clauses and verbal phrases, and ending with the application of this material to issues of Standard English.

ENGL 2830 Introduction to English Language Variety: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course introduces students to the intersections of language and culture, including some of the many dialects of English. Students will learn about the social dimensions of language variation: why people from different cultural groups and regions use different versions of English, how they define themselves based on vocabulary, accent, and phrasing, and how these aspects of language change over time. This course satisfies the English core requirement for the Language and Writing Studies area.

ENGL 3030 Improving on the Blank Page: Writing Poetry: 3 semester hours
Prerequisite: ENGL 1100 or the equivalent or consent of instructor. This course digs into questions of form and technique in poetry. Students will study and practice form, prosody, figurative language, and other techniques for (to borrow from Chilean poet Nicanor Parra) improving on the blank page. This course may be repeated once for a total of 6 credit hours. It counts toward the Certificate in Creative Writing.

ENGL 3040 Lying to Tell a Truth: Writing Fiction: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: One of the following: ENGL 1030, ENGL 2020, ENGL 2030, ENGL 2040; or consent of instructor. This course examines and provides examples of characterization, dialogue, point-of-view, distance, weight, plot, setting, and more. Students will read published short stories and discuss the idea of writing as discovery and exploration—how writers work out of curiosity and bewilderment and tell lies to arrive at a truth.

ENGL 3090 Turning the Kaleidoscope: How We Look at Texts: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent and 48 credit hours. This course introduces the use of literary theory in reading and writing about literary texts. Students will learn and practice conventions of writing in English studies, basic literary research, and MLA documentation. This course is strongly recommended for English majors specializing in literature or anticipating graduate study in English. It may not be taken on satisfactory/unsatisfactory basis. Counts towards the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 3100 Junior-Level Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent (3-6 credit hours) and 48 credit hours. This course enhances analytical, communicative, persuasive, and explanatory capabilities in contemporary American English. It emphasizes academic reading, writing, research, and documentation. It fulfills the university's junior-level writing requirement and counts towards the Writing Certificate.

ENGL 3120 Business Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent (3-6 hours) and 48 credit hours. This course provides an introduction to the language of business and professional settings. Writing assignments may include business correspondence, reports, resumes, proposals, analyses, presentations, marketing, promotional, and multi-modal materials, discussion postings and blogs, articles for in-house publications, and research and documentation. The course fulfills the University's junior-level writing requirement and may not be taken on a satisfactory/unsatisfactory basis.
ENGL 3130 Technical Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent (3-6 hours) and 48 credit hours. This course introduces students to the major elements of industrial technical writing. This course satisfies the University's junior-level writing requirement and may not be taken on a satisfactory/unsatisfactory option.

ENGL 3150 Feature Writing: 3 semester hours
Same as COMM 3140. Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. The course involves the study and practice of freelance and staff-written magazine or newspaper feature articles with an emphasis on relationship between types of publication and article content, research methods, and writing style. It involves frequent short assignments such as journal entries, interviews, library projects, article critiques, and market reports that lead to production of full-length feature articles. It may not be taken on the satisfactory/unsatisfactory option. The course counts toward the English Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 3160 Writing in the Sciences: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent (3-6 hours) and 48 credit hours. This course is designed to teach students how to write effectively in the sciences. Writing assignments may include short reports, proposals and a major project; projects may include a research or analytical report, a formal proposal or a procedures/instructions manual. The course includes an introduction to research methods and documentation. This course fulfills the University's junior-level writing requirement and may not be taken on the satisfactory/unsatisfactory option.

ENGL 3200 Composing Disability: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course offers students an understanding of disability as a complex and crucial part of the world and human experience. Students will approach disability as a matter of identity, language, writing, power, education, politics, literature, art, and more. More specifically, they will read disability studies critical theory, literary works, and personal narratives; create accessible multimodal projects; engage in scholarly and/or community-based research; and candidly discuss assumptions about disability. Through this work, students will assess the value and effect of different ways of thinking about disability and understand the core concepts of disability studies and its emergence as a field.

ENGL 3310 English Literature Before 1790: 3 semester hours
Prerequisite: ENGL 1100 or equivalent. This course examines the development of English literature from the Middle Ages through the eighteenth century. This course is to acquaint students with a range of critical methodologies that have gained currency since the 1960's; topics may include formalist, structuralist, post-structuralist, Marxist, reader-response, psychoanalytic, feminist, cognitive, and evolutionary approaches to literature and culture.
ENGL 4060 Adolescent Literature: 3 semester hours
The course will expose students to the large variety of quality adolescent literature available for reading and study in middle and high school classes. It will also examine the relevance of a variety of issues to the reading and teaching of adolescent literature, among them: reader response; theory and practice; multi-culturalism; literacy; the relation of adolescent literature to "classic" literature; the role of adolescent literature in interdisciplinary studies; adolescent literature as an incentive to extracurricular reading.

ENGL 4080 The Truth about Fiction: Biological Reality and Imaginary Lives: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent (may be taken concurrently). This course presupposes that works of literature center on the main phases, motives, and social relationships in the human life cycle, for instance, survival, growing up, establishing an identity, becoming part of a community, mating, parenting and family life, conflicts between communities, imaginative culture (religion, ideology, the arts), growing old, and dying. Readings include literary works along with psychological studies and literary theory and criticism that draw on biologically grounded research on human behavior.

ENGL 4130 A Machine Made of Words: Writing Your Best Poems: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3030, ENGL 3040, or consent of instructor. This course examines in more detail the ways in which poets construct machines from words—that is, the way that the words of a poem provide its verbal, emotional, and intellectual energy. Through the examination and discussion of both contemporary published poetry and the work of students in the class, students will consider the question: how do poems use language to make sense of (or to defamiliarize) the world and our experience of it? The course counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 4140 Polishing Your Stories: Producing a Publishable Short Story: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3030, ENGL 3040, or consent of instructor. This course gives student writers tools and practice in rethinking and rewriting their stories. It is for students who are serious about writing stories that can be published in Litmag, Bellerive, or other journals. ENGL 4150 Creative Non-Fiction: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3030, ENGL 3040, or consent of instructor. This course will examine the aesthetic and technical concerns of the writer of creative non-fiction. Students will read published essays and write their own to submit for workshops. This course counts toward the Certificate in Writing.

ENGL 4160 Special Topics in Writing: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent. Special topics in writing that are not covered in other 4000level English courses. Since the topics of ENGL 4160 may change each semester, the course may be repeated for credit if the topics are substantially different.

ENGL 4162 Writers at Work: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent. This course introduces students to writing professions. Students will research various writing professions and practice different professional writing genres, such as corporate writing, public relations writing, blogging, magazine writing, copywriting, and editing. Students will work on portfolios that will help them to obtain writing internships or jobs. Readings will help students conduct a meta-analysis of their own writing and writing process.

ENGL 4180 Novel Beginnings: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3030, ENGL 3040, or consent of instructor. This course teaches students to engage the reader when writing a Sci-fi / Fantasy / Thriller / Young Adult / Literary novel. Students will work on getting the balance right, on creating a compelling event, dimensional characters, an engaging plot, a setting that feels real, and a point-of-view strategy. Students learn about key ingredients that make a novel beginning interesting to a reader and present their novel beginnings in a workshop format for revision.

ENGL 4260 Chaucer: 3 semester hours
The course concentrates on the poetry of Geoffrey Chaucer, including the Canterbury Tales, early poetic works, and the Troilus and Criseyde. All readings are in the original Middle English.

ENGL 4360 Shakespeare’s Friends and Rivals: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent or consent of instructor. This course studies the professional London stage from the 1580s to the 1620s with particular emphasis on the drama of Shakespeare's contemporaries. Though Shakespeare will not be the focus of this course, connections with his works will be discussed. Students will learn the conventions of dramatic genres and how to situate plays in their historical, cultural, and literary contexts. They will also explore how playwrights responded to the theater market in which they exhibited their dramatic wares and the extent to which they saw one another as rivals or collaborators.

ENGL 4370 Shakespeare: Tragedies and Romances: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent or consent of instructor. This course explores Shakespeare’s tragedies and romances, with particular attention to their genre as well as their relation to the cultural issues of Shakespeare’s time. Students will learn to see Shakespeare as a dramatic craftsman and explore the question of his contribution to English literature: whether he saw himself as an innovator or inheritor of well-known stories from the classical tradition, Britain's chronicle histories, scripture, and legend. Shakespeare’s narrative poems, as well as modern film adaptations, may also be featured.

ENGL 4380 Shakespeare: Comedies and Histories: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3100 or equivalent or consent of instructor. This course explores Shakespeare's comedies and histories, with particular attention to their genre as well as their relation to the cultural issues of Shakespeare’s time. Above all, the place of women and the importance of marriage and male friendship. Students will learn how Shakespeare's plays explore the rights of citizens and perhaps challenge accepted notions of political power. Students will also uncover Shakespeare’s debt to ancient and contemporary forms of comedy as well as his innovative contributions to that dramatic form. The sonnets, as well as modern film adaptations, may also be brought into the discussion of these questions.

ENGL 4450 The Eighteenth-Century English Novel: 3 semester hours
The origins and early development of the English novel, from Defoe to Jane Austen.

ENGL 4550 Novels into Films: The Nineteenth Century: 3 semester hours
Prerequisites: ENGL 3090, ENGL 3320. Novels by Austen, Eliot, Wilde, Hardy, and others read in themselves and as interpreted in film. Comparisons of the representational and aesthetic techniques available to novels and film.
